Camo Netting is a loosely linked plastic mesh in camouflage colors. It is folded or rolled for transport and storage but expanded when put into use. Usual uses include concealment or decoration of valued structures/vehicles. It can also be set up to hide a hunter, as it effectively conceals the human form from potential prey.

Camouflage Netting is a rather crude and simple technology, consisting only of fabric webbing coloured to match the local environment and usually woven with local flora. A rarer version is composed of sheets of cloth covered in Cameleoline, a refractive chemical substance that can blend its colouration into the surrounding area.

Camo-netting can be manufactured incredibly cheaply and easily: simply using nets with leaves, vegetation and rags threaded through it can produce enough for the Vietcong's purposes. It is capable of concealing both structures and units from ARVN patrols, until the Vietcong decide to strike. This has made it a nightmare for the ARVN, and has allowed the Vietcong to win many battles that they ...

Military camouflage is the use of camouflage by a military force to protect personnel and equipment from observation by enemy forces. In practice, this means applying colour and materials to military equipment of all kinds, including vehicles, ships, aircraft, gun positions and battledress, either to conceal it from observation (), or to make it appear as something else ().

A camouflage net, also known as a camo net or camo-netting, was a piece of equipment used to conceal ships. Some camouflage nets had a photosensitive surface that could capture, then display, an image. One might spread such a net on the ground and photograph it before deploying the net over a ship. This article is a stub about technology.

The problem with the idea is that the camo net is also a rendered object which may or may not be visible (stick out) as such from a distance. Car and net are being rendered but all other vegetation isn't drawn from where you're looking which would nullify the entire idea and basically make no difference in terms of hiding anything.

Fabritech's CN-15 camouflage netting was formed of netting made up of metallic jamming fibers which produced a reflective ability that avoided detection from standard sensor sweeps. Late in the Galactic Civil War, the Empire banned its production due to the netting's usefulness to the Rebels.

The cover of the book, Walkable City, by Jeff Speck. The cover features a photograph of a busy city street with many pedestrians, taken from a high angle. The title "Walkable City" is prominently displayed at the top, and the author's name "Jeff Speck" is at the bottom. The background is a light, textured color.

Jeff Speck has dedicated his career to determining what makes cities thrive. And he has boiled it down to one key factor: walkability. The very idea of a modern metropolis evokes visions of bustling sidewalks, vital mass transit, and a vibrant, pedestrian-friendly urban core. But in the typical American city, the car is still king, and downtown is a place that's easy to drive to but often not worth arriving at. Making walkability happen is relatively easy and cheap; seeing exactly what needs to be done is the trick. In this essential new book, Speck reveals the invisible workings of the city, how simple decisions have cascading effects, and how we can all make the right choices for our communities. Bursting with sharp observations and real-world examples, giving key insight into what urban planners actually do and how places can and do change, Walkable City lays out a practical, necessary, and eminently achievable vision of how to make our normal American cities great again.

First published in the pulp magazine Weird Tales in February 1928, 'The Call of Cthulhu' is a terrifying trilogy of horror stories that has influenced writers like William S. Burroughs, Ramsey Campbell, Thomas Ligotti and Stephen King.

These classic rules launched skirmish wargaming in the UK and the North America. They were played in most wargaming clubs on a regular basis. From stage coach robberies to recreations of gunfights from the pages of history, these rules introduced wargaming with individual figures. This edition includes many previously unpublished chapters. These rules have all that is required to recreate the American Wild West on the table top. Bank robberies, saloon brawls, US cavalry actions and the showdown on the main street are made possible. The basic rules are straightforward, but there are many optional chapters that can be used as required. Optional rules include all the glorious detail of the Wild West: Saloon Brawls, Special rules for Indians, The 'Iron Horse' and Frontier towns and for playing solo games In addition to the full set of original rules, this edition includes extra chapters on various scenarios and campaigns The History of Wargaming Project aims to document the development of wargaming.

“Cities are the future of the human race, and Jeff Speck knows how to make them work.” —David Owen, staff writer at the New Yorker Nearly every US city would like to be more walkable—for reasons of health, wealth, and the environment—yet few are taking the proper steps to get there. The goals are often clear, but the path is seldom easy. Jeff Speck’s follow-up to his bestselling Walkable City is the resource that cities and citizens need to usher in an era of renewed street life. Walkable City Rules is a doer’s guide to making change in cities, and making it now. The 101 rules are practical yet engaging—worded for arguments at the planning commission, illustrated for clarity, and packed with specifications as well as data. For ease of use, the rules are grouped into 19 chapters that cover everything from selling walkability, to getting the parking right, escaping automobilism, making comfortable spaces and interesting places, and doing it now! Walkable City was written to inspire; Walkable City Rules was written to enable. It is the most comprehensive tool available for bringing the latest and most effective city-planning practices to bear in your community. The content and presentation make it a force multiplier for place-makers and change-makers everywhere.
