The Goldberg Variations, BWV 988, is a set of variations for harpsichord by Johann Sebastian Bach (1675 - 1750). The Goldberg Variations were first published in 1741. According to Bach's first biographer, Johann Nikolaus Forkel, the Goldberg Variations were allegedly composed to help the Russian ambassador to Saxony, Count Hermann Karl von Keyserling, with his insomnia. The variations name come from their original performer, Johann Gottlieb Goldberg, who was the Count's favourite harpsichordist.
